Module Aims:	The course Russia in the Mirror of its Sociological, Political and Economical History – Country Studies. In Russian (B2) provides students with useful knowledge to be able to view the phenomena of today's Russian reality in their social and cultural historical context. To see and understand the worldview and historical traditions, constructive or destructive political aspirations behind such widespread generalizations as “the enigmatic Russian soul”, “the legendary Russian patriotism”, “Russian savagery, backwardness”, “the collective spirit”, “respect for autocracy”, “great culture”, “imperial aspirations”. The course requires conceptual knowledge of the thematic connections and terminology of the material.
Module Subject:	The course introduces students to the fundamental characteristics of today's Russian social order, starting from its intellectual and historical roots. The lectures begin with an examination of pre-Christian Eurasian history, pointing to the development and establishment of an imperial perspective based on a deep-rooted and extremely rich intellectual tradition in the region. The prehistory and spiritual history-mythology introduction is followed by a social and political history block, which revolves around 10 well-known historical myths: Russian backwardness, The Norman theory of the founding of the Russian state, The Cossacks, The thousand-year Orthodox culture, The Mongol-Tatar yoke, The serf yoke, Ivan the Terrible, The autocracy, The glorious and majestic Prince Kutuzov, Stalin. In the second half of the course, students are introduced to the social history of the 20th-21st centuries: the national symbols of Russia, the political science issues of power, the fall of the Tsarist and then the Soviet empire, the change of regime, the state structure of the Russian Federation, the social and economic situation of the Russian Federation, its rise to a superpower.

Title:	Environmental Problems in Historical Perspective
Teacher:	Prof. Habil. Lajos Rácz, PhD
Contact:	racz.lajos@szte.hu
Level:	Bachelor and Master
Termin:	1 st semester
Module Aims:	The main aims of the course are to achieve a thorough understanding and to provide a critical evaluation of the key concepts and theoretical approaches that have developed and are developing in the field of environmental history; to gain a comprehensive understanding of the fundamental themes in the environmental history of the region, subjected to a critical and comparative analysis; and to place Central, South-Eastern and Eastern Europe in a European and global context.
Module Subject:	Environmental history is an interdisciplinary that analyzes interactions between human beings, societies and their physical environment. Environmental history was born in the 1960's, when ecological thinking appeared in the context of historical research. In the first thematic unit of this course the conceptual and theoretical framework of environmental history is defined, followed by the introduction of the special research techniques of this interdisciplinary. One of the key notions of environmental history is the concept historical ecosystem, which can be defined as a subsistence system which exists in one locality, but the spatial dimension of an ecosystem is very flexible, and may range from a pond to the whole universe. In addition to the concept of an ecosystem, the concepts biological, social and cultural evolution, ecological crisis and transformation are also defined. In the second thematic unit the great crises and transformations of historical ecosystems during the traditional and modern times are analyzed. A series of case-studies will be discussed from the period starting with the formation of traditional societies to the invention of agriculture. Classical examples of traditional ecosystems include the early civilizations of Mesopotamia, Egypt, China and the Indus civilization. After laying the foundations, more than half of the course time will be devoted to the discussion of the environmental history of the last two thousand years. We analyze the historical ecosystems of Europe, Asia and the American civilizations during the Middle Ages. The great civilizations of the world became connected after the geographical discoveries of the 15th century. This interconnectedness and the formation of a world system fundamentally reformed the economic and ecological power relations of the world. Civilizations began to use their plants, weeds and animals and unified their landscapes according to European standards. The next focal point of the course is the development, process and the consequences of the Industrial Revolution. The Industrial Revolution re-defined the role of mankind in the process of evolution. In the 20th century human activity reached the dimension of geological forces such as volcanoes, earthquakes and cyclones. The global scale of environmental changes, pollution and global warming has fundamentally influenced the evolutionary perspective of humankind.

	During the course we discuss topics in a synthetic manner and from a comparative historical point of view and special attention is devoted to the environmental and ecological problems of Central, South-Eastern and Eastern Europe.

Level:	Bachelor and Master. Prior musical training is required
Termin:	Both semesters
Module Aims:	The basic aim of the module is to use students' instrumental skills in music literature other than their solo repertoire as chamber music requires a number of skills not normally required for the performance of solo music. The module focuses on group work as an essential element of music production.
Module Subject:	Teamwork means cooperating, especially when playing in instrumental groups like orchestras or other chamber music formations. It is a part of our everyday lives in teaching and performing. The module will focus on chamber music aspects offered by various ranges of compositions. The goal of the chamber music approach is to prioritise important sections while remaining secondary to others. Chamber music is not restricted to concert halls and opera stages but must be presented in education.

Module Aims:	During the practice students learn some basic knowledge of three-dimensional design, and they also get some experience on how to work with some different kinds of materials (such as paper, clay, wood, wire, plaster, Styrofoam, etc.) Students have the possibility to construct and create some 3D sculptural forms.
Module Subject:	Participants of the course are going to make some research on some “natural forms” and will get some experience and practical knowledge on some basic concepts of sculptural tasks, such as shape, construction, scale, size and proportion. During the term students will have the possibility to choose their own “natural forms” (such as crops, insect cocoons, minerals, etc.), to carry out some research about its shape, proportion and studying its structure they will create some sketches, 3D models and some sculptural objects and constructions as well. We would focus on the most important and fundamental sculptural and spatial issues (shape, construction, scale, size and proportion, structure). During the research process, we do not only focus on the visual content, but put emphasis on other senses, such as tactility etc. These practices will help to develop the students’ way of thinking in creating three dimensional forms and spatial constructions.

Module Aims:	The course aim is to help the students to develop their way of thinking and creating 3D forms and spatial constructions. We carry out some research and focus on the most fundamental sculptural and spatial issues (shape, construction, scale, size and proportion, structure). Another important aspect is that students should be able to use this knowledge in the field of visual education and also in their own art- and teaching practice.
Module Subject:	This course develops the students’ sculptural and spatial knowledge based on the topics they have already learnt at 3D Design Studies I. course, such as proportion, scale, material, forms and construction, forms and spatial relations. We focus on the design and modelling process, but some best concepts and design pieces will be carried out. Realization of their original concepts in material is always a significant motivation for the students and provides even more opportunity to gain experience during the working process. The variety of tasks aims that students could learn the main aspects in the three-dimensional way of expression. During the practical work students gather further experience on the use of different kind of materials and also the significance of its formative role. The course involves some basic research on the relationship between structure and form, studying shapes and the diversity of texture and structure, creation of different spatial arrangements and sculptures, construction and modelling of spatial geometric systems, preparation of their visual presentation and design documentation.

Module Subject:	Thematik: <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. In der Einführung wird auf Möglichkeiten der Klassifizierung der Sprachen, vor allem auf die Klassifizierung nach dem formalen Aufbau, d. h. auf die Sprachtypen eingegangen. 2. Als Ausgangssprache dient das Deutsche, wobei zuerst Bereiche aus der Morphologie herausgegriffen werden (z. B. die Genusproblematik bei Substantiven, Personal- und Possessivpronomina; Möglichkeiten der Pluralbildung von Substantiven; Deklination der Adjektive in unterschiedlichen Satzgliedfunktionen; die Konjugation und das Tempussystem, Perfektbildung mit haben und sein; Bildung und Verwendung der Numeralia usw.). 3. Des Weiteren werden ausgewählte typische Interferenzfehler thematisiert (z. B. Fehler bei der Negation, beim nominalen Prädikat und vor allem valenzbedingte Fehler).

	4. Im Bereich der Lexik wird wiederum vom Deutschen ausgegangen: Es werden Teile des lexikalischen Bestandes ausgewählter Sprachen miteinander kontrastiert, welche die Äquivalenztypen Eins-zu-viele-Entsprechung, Viele-zu-eins-Entsprechung , Eins-zu-Teil-Entsprechung belegen. Die Eins-zu-Null-Entsprechung wird ausführlich behandelt, da die Realien auch aus übersetzungstheoretischer und -praktischer Sicht große Relevanz haben.
